How do you say it?

A game to help children understand tone of voice when communicating. Also a great warm up game.

Warm up/ice breaker games

There are two versions of this warm up game

Both versions are a roll and respond activity but the second one is differentiated for a child with selective mutism or children not comfortable talking.

Each person takes a turn at rolling one die to find the row and rolling again to find the column. Find the square and respond to the statement.

No pressure on the child to do them but you could do it with them if they are feeling shy or worried in any way. If they really don't want to then they can just pass or give some sort of signal to say they want to roll again.

Roll and Respond- Use a die and roll your task

First roll

	Make a happy face	Make a sad face	Make an angry face	Make a surprised face	Make a disgusted face	Make a scared face
	Give a high five	Give a thumbs up	Give a wink	Give eye contact	Shrug your shoulders	Hands on your hips
	Say it with an angry voice 'I love sausages'	Say it with a happy voice 'I love chips'	Say it with a sad voice 'I love beans'	Say it slowly 'I love bacon'	Say it fast 'I love sweets'	Say it quietly 'I love vegetables'
	Point to a part of your body that is affected by being angry	Point to a part of your body that is affected by being sad	Point to a part of your body that is affected by being worried	Point to a part of your body that is affected by being happy	Point to a part of your body that is affected by being Scared	Point to a part of your body that is affected by being disgusted
	Time to act You lost your favourite toy	Time to act You came first in the running race	Time to act Your teacher gave you a sticker	Time to act You stood in dog poo	Time to act You got a present	Time to act Someone bumped into you
	Say it with a tired voice 'Cats are cute'	Say it with a scared voice 'Dogs run fast'	Say it with a bored voice 'I scored a goal!'	Say it loudly 'It's a windy day'	Say it with a disgusted voice 'Rainbows are colourful'	Say it with an excited voice 'I love school'
