

The boy who cried wolf

A story about telling lies

Once upon a time there was a shepherd boy who looked after a flock of sheep.

One day he was feeling a bit bored so thought he might have some fun. He decided to pretend that there was a wolf coming to eat the sheep. He ran down to the village shouting 'Wolf, wolf there's a wolf!'

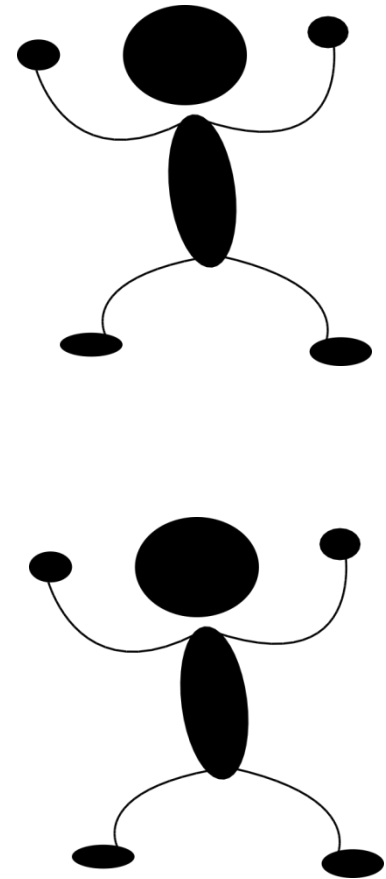

Wolf, wolf there's a wolf!

The villagers came running to help and scare the wolf away.

The villagers were annoyed to find that there wasn't a wolf at all. The villagers were angry!

The boy thought it was hilarious! He laughed and laughed and laughed.

HAHAHAHA!
Only joking!

The next day the shepherd boy decided to have some fun again and he ran down to the village again shouting 'Wolf, wolf there really IS a wolf!'

Wolf, wolf there really is a wolf!

The villagers came running AGAIN!
But when they got there... yes you have guessed it. There was no sign of a wolf.

No wolf! The villagers were furious!

The shepherd boy thought it was so amusing! What great entertainment!

HAHAHAHA!
Only joking!

The next day the shepherd boy was tending his flock when all of a sudden...A WOLF appeared!

He ran as fast as his legs could carry him to the village.
He said 'There really IS a wolf this time!' 'I am not telling lies'.

Do you think the villagers believed him?

No they didn't believe him. Why would they? He had told them twice already that there was a wolf and when they got there. No wolf!

There isn't a wolf!
You are telling lies again!

Of course the wolf killed and ate
all the sheep!

The shepherd boy was very sad. He said 'I will never tell lies again!'

I will never tell lies again!
